

Going Further - Resources

(Some are available at the Faith@Home kiosk)

Recommended Books

It Starts At Home

by Kurt Bruner and Steve Stroope

This book helps parents understand the process of faith formation at home and a practical plan for becoming intentional.

Parents' Guide to the Spiritual Growth of Children

by John Trent, Rick Osborne and Kurt Bruner

This book offers a road map for parents to shape the faith of children under twelve years old.

Parents' Guide to the Spiritual Mentoring of Teens

by Joe White and Jim Weidmann

This book helps helps parents coach the faith formation of older children.

Just Add Family Kit

by Kurt and Olivia Bruner

This book provides ideas for faith-talks during mealtime, bedtime, family nights, holidays and more.

Going Further - Church Support

Faith Path - Free age-appropriate kits are available for parents to guide a child's spiritual journey one step at a time. Select the next kit for your child at cottonwoodcreek.org/faithathome

Faith@Home – Free, easy ideas for faith conversations at mealtime, bedtime, family night, movie nights and more are available at the Faith@Home kiosk or online at cottonwoodcreek.org/faithathome.

Creek Kids – Cottonwood Creek Baptist Church offers a variety of programs that come along side parents in their effort to instill faith in children including age-graded life groups, Awana, camps, and much more. To learn more, visit cottonwoodcreek.org/ministries.

Creek Student Ministries - In an effort to come alongside parents, Cottonwood Creek Baptist Church sponsors a range of ministries for teens. If your student needs a pastor speaking into his or her life, visit the web site at cottonwoodcreek.org/ministries to explore opportunities for getting your child connected to one of our student pastors.

The Intentional Father

Giving a Strong Spiritual Legacy

Tools for Men

The Intentional Father

Giving a Strong Spiritual Legacy

By Justin Frazier, Executive Pastor- Discipleship

Every believing dad hopes his or her child will embrace the faith and grow deep spiritual roots. But studies tell us that over half of those growing up in Christian homes will walk away from Christianity by the time they leave the teen years – some to return. Too often, parents “outsource” the spiritual formation of their children to the church. And while a good church is very important, God designed the family to be the primary place where faith is nurtured. So dads need to understand four principles that can help them become more intentional about their child’s faith.

THE LEGACY PRINCIPLE

The scriptures tell us that what we do today directly influences the multi-generational cycle of family traits, beliefs and actions – for good or bad (Exodus 20:5-6, Psalm 78:5-8). So passing a strong faith to our children begins by having a strong faith ourselves – and modeling the gospel in our marriages and in how we relate to those closest to us. Some of us need to break negative cycles that may have started with our own upbringing in order to launch a new, improved legacy for the next generation.

THE LIKELIHOOD PRINCIPLE

The good news is this: in the context of healthy relationships, children tend to embrace the values of their parents. Proverbs 22:6 tells us that when children learn right from wrong at home under the nurturing, loving training of parents, they tend to adopt mom and dad’s beliefs. While there are no guarantees because every child has a free will, kids are far more likely to embrace their parent’s faith if they enjoy their parent’s company! That’s a big part of the reason fathers are warned not to “provoke your children to wrath” but rather “bring them up in the training and admonition of the Lord” (Ephesians 6:4). Bottom line – a strong relationship with you, Dad, is key to your children building a strong Christian faith.

THE LENSES PRINCIPLE

Jesus taught that our enemy’s primary weapon is deception – getting us to believe and live according to lies rather than truth (John 8:44). And when someone is deceived, he or she doesn’t know it! Our children are growing up in a culture that bombards them with lies. An hour or two per week at church is no match for the hundreds of hours spent with media, school, and friends. Nor can it compete with a child’s fallen nature that often wants to rebel against what is good, true and beautiful. It is the job of fathers to equip children with the corrective “lenses” of truth so they can better navigate the deceptive roads of life.

THE LEARNING PRINCIPLE

Our children can only learn what we teach them in a manner that will reach them. In other words, we need to vary our approach based upon their unique personality, learning style, and most importantly, stage of development. Children fall into one of three stages that should guide the methods we choose for discussing our faith and values at home.

The Imprint Period:

(toddler to about age seven)

Small children are all ears. They will believe it because mom or dad said it, much like a baby gosling that imprints itself onto its mother and follows it wherever she leads. Young children soak in what we tell them – so this is an ideal season for teaching them basic bible stories, memorization, and other building block truths of Christianity.

The Impression Period

(about age eight to early teen)

During this season, children no longer accept what we say at face value. They may question us, push back, or even argue. During this season, children do need to know what we believe. But they also need help understanding the rationale behind those beliefs. While more work, this is a positive part of their faith development because it means they have grown past blind acceptance and are ready for deeper understanding.

The Coaching Period

(early teen to young adult)

Our job changes when the kids enter the coaching period. We can motivate, encourage, challenge and advise. We can’t force feed. We can help them clearly articulate what they believe, challenge their thinking, remind them of the “basics” learned during the “practices” of the imprint and impression years. We can provide a safe environment to wrestle with, even question, the values they’ve learned. Maintaining strong relationship and frequent dialogue are the key to your influence now.

In light of these realities, fathers can become intentional about creating and capturing opportunities to nurture the roots of faith in their children.